The Concept; a dream is now becoming a reality in NAMMA KARNATAKA with the NAK launch in Tiptur.

Using local talent to learn from experts about basic and preventive care and serve as catalysts to connect with specialists is a win-win situation for all concerned.

Shashidhar TUDA

According to Dr. Hema Divakar (who has been a part of the women's healthcare space for the last 3 decades) access, affordability, and lack of awareness impact the health of girls and women much more than their male counterparts.

Therefore It is not only about empowering them on the importance of speaking up and taking care of their own health, but also about ensuring they can reach healthcare providers physically or digitally. We must encourage them to seek preventive care and ensure their wellness.

TUDA, Shashidhar, a trusted leader in the constituency, believes in initiatives that are sustainable and can scale."The NAK at Tiptur is just the start of a long journey."

In a cluster of 5 villages connected to each NAK, we will scale up the number of NAKs rapidly across Tiptur.

We also want to make sure that we facilitate the capacity building of our SAKHI's so that girls and women coming to the center can trust them to do their best- says mr Shashidhar Tuda

It will also serve as an avenue for the employment of these intelligent young people from the villages. The preliminary feedback on the concept has been very positive and the community is eagerly looking forward to the launch and the long-term benefits of having a facility right at their doorstep.

The urgency for primary care and preventive care has been well recognized when covid hit hard and the glaring gaps in healthcare delivery were identified.

A skilled workforce is needed in large numbers but it's not only the quantity but also the quality.

Recognizing the merits of digital platforms the whole country has encashed the multiple benefits, including healthcare with point-of-care devices and follow up with specialist consultations virtually
